Cincinnati Live Stock Market.

The receipts of live stock at Cincinnati and Great Western Stock Yards since Thursday, have been as follows:

Beef cattle.....1,862

Hogs.....855

Sheep.....4,445

CATTLE--The market has been heavy and declining since last report. It was dull to-day, closing 1/2 lower. Many poor Texas cattle remained in the city. Would not object to making a loan to a suitable tenant who can give satisfactory security. WM. H. ENGLISH.

The following were the prices per cental, live weight:

Extra shipping stock.....$ 25 50

Prime butchers' stock.....$ 25 50

Medium.....$ 25 50

Common.....$ 25 50

Street Railroad and Other Matters--

On the Railroad--The Capital Moved--

Chicago, June 6.--The case of Malcom McNeil against the Chicago City Railway Company was heard yesterday. This was a bill for an injunction to restrain the laying of a horse railway track on South Clark street.

The question involved is, whether, under the ordinance of Judge Davis, the city and the company, there had been, on the part of the latter, a forfeiture of its right to lay the track, by the lapse of time. The matter was taken under advisement.

The case of Thomas Sheehan against the Illinois Central Railway Company, is on trial before Judge Davis. It is a suit to recover damages laid at $100,000 for an alleged unlawful use of a patented process for case-hardening iron.

The Common Council last night reconsidered the vote of a previous meeting regarding the Sunday law, and voted twenty to thirteen to close all the saloons from midnight Saturday to Sunday midnight.

A man walking on the track of the Illinois Central Railroad near Hyde Park last night was run over and cut to pieces by a passenger train. Two men who witnessed the accident were detained in custody as witnesses for the inquest.

Tad Lincoln has been sick for several days with water on the lungs.

At a meeting of the Common Council, last night resolutions were adopted looking to the securing of the title to lake front property, also, to the extension of the lake tunnel for the more abundant supply of water.

A free library was formally opened last night on Michigan avenue, between twenty-third and twenty-fourth streets. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present. The library had its origin with the pastor and people of the Michigan Avenue Baptist Church, but it was resolved not to make it sectarian, and Rev. Mr. Cheney was chosen President, and the other officers distributed among various denominations. Valuable gifts of books were made to the enterprise.

The Treaty of Washington will be ratified by England without much delay. Gladstone declared in the House of Commons yesterday that the existing laws were ample to carry out all its provisions.

The French Assembly is considering the desirability of abrogating the decree exiling the Orleans princes, and will decide the matter on Thursday. Every well-wisher of France will hope they may be restored, and permitted to take active part in managing her affairs; with their education and varied experience, their services will be very valuable to France.

SECRETARY BOUTWELL has wisely refused Jay Cooke & Co.'s offer to take the remainder of the five per cent. loan, upon certain conditions, which would put about thirteen millions of dollars into Jay Cooke & Co.'s pockets. The loan languishes though, and more agents are to be sent to Europe to press it. The railway securities which pay six or seven per cent. seem to be regarded as better investments by foreign capitalists than the Government loan.

FOURTH of July celebrations are rapidly becoming a thing of the past, and from present appearances the day will not be observed to any great extent this year. Here the German Orphan Society will have their annual picnic, and that will probably comprise the whole of our celebration. It is singular that the observance of a day that ought to be so dear to every American is left entirely to foreigners to whom it can not possess a tithe of the interest it should have for the native born. Americans do not take kindly to holidays. The everlasting and irrepressible desire to "get along" interferes too much.

SOMEONE has sent the Sentinel a two-column communication, laudatory of William S. Groesbeck, and urging him as the Democratic candidate for President. This the Sentinel makes the occasion to warmly endorse Mr. Hendricks, saying that the West must have the next President, and that he is the man for the West. The Sentinel having now come out squarely in favor of Mr. Hendricks, and having given him such an unqualified endorsement, the papers that followed in the wake of "Buckeye," in abusing it, will have to make a new tack. From this time until the convention meets its readers may expect to have a surfeit of Hendricks.

THE suicidal mania is on us again with its periodic rush. Love is the prevailing cause now. From every point in the compass are wafted sickening stories of death, of mortals launching into eternity without a thought, merely because their love affairs had gone wrong. A Chicago man sick of world because his affianced danced with another man, killed her and blew the top of his head off. A Massachusetts couple opposed in their desire to be married, lovingly took arsenic together; she died, but he by a prompt use of the stomach pump, was brought back from the shores of "the silent river." A Galesburg, Illinois, youth vexed about something his "girl" had said, clapped a pistol to his breast and shot away his life. A young bride almost living among us, and who ought to have been a happy wife, dosed herself because her husband's family did not receive her kindly, and died in such a way as to make one think they were justified in their treatment of her. The accounts of similar cases are pouring in from all quarters; you can scarcely take up a paper without seeing one, perhaps two or three. And what do people think of them? Generally that the victims must be insane or they would not do such a thing, sometimes that they are silly and the world is better off without them. The public views suicide with a sickly sentimentality that tends more than any other thing to increase it. The rising generations are brought up to consider it an act of little moment to hurry from this world into the unknown one, the newspapers chronicle case after case with never a protest, the pulpits are dumb as the dead, the life insurance companies offer a premium for it, and nowhere is the truth proclaimed that suicide is an outrageous crime against society and God. Until that truth is made plain and enforced the suicidal mania will grow more and more, and thousands of lives will be made so fair and useful will go out in the blackness of sin. Our old English ancestors were nearer the truth than we when they buried the suicide as a criminal and an outcast at the cross roads, with a stake driven through his heart. It was a terrible thing to do, but the spirit that found vent in this barbaric act was truer and better than our sentimentality.

When diamonds are polished and yet un-set, the genuine gem is easily detected from the imitation by laying the stones on a printed paper. Diamonds, although brilliant, are not transparent; so, if the letters shine through and are visible, the stone is of rock crystal, paste or other imitations.

Things Found in a Kitchen Drawer.

Three aprons, two dusters,
The tail of a pie,
A dirty towel,
A dish cloth and rag;
A foot of a stocking,
Three cups and a fill,
A bask and six buttons,
A mouse-trap and quill,
A comb and a thimble,
With madonna hands,
A box of specula,
For the bright hands;
Some mace and some cloves,
Tied up in a bag,
An empty thread paper,
And one in a rag,
Short pieces of ribbon,
Both green and black,
One grater and nutmeg,
The key of the jack,
An inch of wax candle,
A steel and a flint,
A bundle of matches,
A parcel of mint,
A lump of old soap,
A crump for the paste,
A pair of red garters,
A belt for the waist;
A rusty bent screw,
A broken brass clock,
Some onions and tinner,
The kitchen door lock,
A key for the pudding,
A whetstone and string,
A penny crane hook,
A new curtain ring,
A print for the butter,
A dirty chemise,
Two pieces of soap,
A large piece of cheese,
Five teaspoons of tin,
A large lump of rosin,
The foot of a hare,
And rocks by the dozen,
A card to tell fortunes,
A sponge and a can,
A small pattypan,
A rolling pin pushed,
A common prayer book,
Are the things which I found
In the drawer of the cook.

June.
O, happy June when our hearts are in tune
With all the roses bright and good;
When the roses bloom, and a sweet perfume
Breathes out from the fresh green woods,
When the birds all sing, and each living thing
Feels its joy but to live and grow.
All is life and love, from the sun above
To the butterflies gay below.

Bees and singing birds were not found in California when it was settled. Now the mocker, bob-o-link, lark, linnet, thrush, oriole, and common robin are there. The bees are so numerous that the honey is an item of export.

An Australian gentleman, examining a mining claim, was seized, stripped and covered with tar and wool. He went and got himself photographed in this guise, and sued his assailants for $2,000 damages, putting in the picture as evidence.

James Hour, an inexperienced youth of Livonia Station, New York, recently mixed his liquors, which didn't set well on his stomach; but, in attempting to throw them out, a piece of undigested food got in the van, stuck in his throat and choked him to death.

One of the fashions of the season is to read over all the advertisements in the papers, and see if the stores are keeping up with the seasons and styles. If you miss any familiar names from the list of advertisers, you can know that they are not keeping up with the times, and for that reason are keeping out of sight.

The necessity of Utah has produced a grass-hopper killing machine that takes about a rod of land in its sweep, and makes hash of every grasshopper it comes in contact with.

A correspondent of the Buffalo Courier says: "Does it look entirely well in Richard Grant White, with his fourteen ounce brain to be sneering at the philologist or other attainments or capabilities of a man who had frittered away sixteen ounces of brain in abstruse studies and complicated burglaries, and yet had fifty-nine ounces left, after he was hanged? I think not."

Now Carrots.

The value of carrots for stock, although written on, yearly and repeatedly is yet we fear too little known or appreciated. All who have ever used them as food for the horse, state that one-fourth of carrots to three-fourths of oats, will keep the animal better than all oats alone. In their use for milch cows, while they do not cause as great secretion of milk as is far richer. In the fattening of beef cattle or sheep the use of one-fourth to one-third of carrots has been found productive of more rapid increase in the weight of the animal than of the grains alone.

As a table-esculent the carrot in soups is essential to those who have ever used it, and when boiled, peeled, and sliced up when cold, then tried to just a nice crisp brown, no vegetable equals it or is better liked by all those before whom we have placed it so cooked for many years.

Of varieties the Early French Horn is the earliest to supply the table for soups. It is the richest in sugar and starch, and if left, it grows to make a good winter root. Next to the Early Horn is the Long Orange, productive of three times the weight per acre of the Early Howard, and the richest and best of the winter sorts. The Attingham is next, and by some growers preferred because it grows so much out of ground that it can be harvested without digging, but while it will increase the milk of cows equally with the Long Orange, it has not the substance of fat or material food of that variety. It is our practice to sow seed thickly, as they come up better, and the cost of seed is not the half of what it is to transplant. We thin the Early Horn to three inches and the Orange to six or eight inches. Land for the carrot should be thoroughly pulverized and plowed deep.

The Tichborne Estates.

Of the Tichborne estates, now in litigation in England, a correspondent writes:

The Tichborne patrimony goes back, they say, two hundred years before the conquest. When Lady Tichborne was about twenty in extreme old age, she made a charitable bequest in the shape of a dole of bread to be distributed to the poor annually, on the feast of the annunciation of the Virgin Mary. Her husband promised her, for the carrying out of this bequest, as much land as she, in her infancy, could travel from the station to the old lady could get over but a small portion of his land. But to the astonishment of his lordship, the benevolent dame crawled over twenty-three rich and goodly acres, which are known as "crawls" to this day.

Reaching her bed, the dying woman predicted the prosperity of the family, while the annual dole existed, and its ruin if the dole should be discontinued. If it should be discontinued or diverted the old house would be foreclosed by a generation of seven sons being followed immediately by a generation of seven daughters and no sons. The custom was continued for centuries on the 25th of March, until the middle of the last century, when it was abused. Vagabond gipsies, etc., assembling and pilfering on that day, the gentry complained, and the dole was discontinued in 1700.

Didn't Pan Out Well.

A young husband in Baltimore is in a nice pickle. From some cause he concluded his wife did not love him as well as she should, and he determined to test that element. Therefore he wrote a note, telling her that he had been going to divorce himself from her, and that before she read the contents of that note his spirit would be hovering over her, observing how she took his death. The would-be suicide entrusted the note to a small boy, but the boy mistook the direction, and carried the note to a next door neighbor of his wife. Not liking to communicate the full intelligence to the unlucky woman, the lady handed the note to an officer, with instructions, if possible, to prevent the rash act. The officer hurried off, and sure enough, found the man on the bank of the canal. Rushing up, the officer seized the unlucky husband, and marched him off to the station house, notwithstanding his protestations that it was all a joke and that he did not intend to commit suicide, etc. After the incarceration of the husband, the note was handed to the wife, with the information that he had been saved. After upbraiding the officer for not letting her know of her husband's suicide, the wife made a charge of lunacy against him, and he barely escaped being placed in the asylum.

A Windfall to Government.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette asserts the truth of his statement, that an Englishman had left his fortune of $11,000,000 to the United States government, provided it would guarantee to pay the heirs 3 per cent. annually. He says further: The party making the will is an Englishman named Derby, and has made all his money in mercantile business in New York. At present this money to the amount of about $100,000,000 is invested in English securities bearing 3 per cent. interest. The will provides that the United States shall have control of the entire sum to dispose of as it may seem fit, and only to account to the heirs, of whom seven are named for the interest on the same. There are further provisions to the effect that the treasury department shall keep a record of all marriages and births among the heirs. The conditions of the will are that in case the government does not accept the trust, the property shall be distributed among the heirs according to the laws of inheritance prevailing in Massachusetts. The will is now in the hands of a lawyer in New York, and has not been submitted to the treasury department except in an indirect manner.

Man as a Baker of Flap-Jacks.

Mrs. Jane Swishelm, in favor of men as cooks, and by way of illustration, relates the following: "I never knew the significance of the impulse which leads all boys to want to bake griddle-cakes, until I saw a French half-breed from Belkirk, beside his ironless cart, on the open prairie, preparing his evening meal. He had a large fish boiling on the coals without any intervention of a gridiron. His batter was made of flour, water, and a bucket. He heated and greased a long-handled sheet-iron frying-pan, poured in enough batter to cover the bottom, set it over the fire, kept on serenely attending to other matters, as though no 'flapjacks' were in danger of being burned, as it should have been if any woman had set it to bake; but just at the right moment he came up, looked into the pan, took hold of the handle, shook it gently, then with a sudden jerk sent the cake spinning into the air, caught it as it came down square in the center, with the other side up. The cake was turned as a woman could have turned it, and with an ease which showed that the man was in his proper sphere."

A Novel Road to Fortune.

A Natick correspondent of the Providence Press tells of a firm in that town, composed of two brothers and two sons, who, very few years ago, were quite poor. They had, in a very small way, the manufacture of baseballs and bats for base ball clubs. They made a good article, and their business increased gradually, until now they own an immense building for their business, together with some of the handsomest dwellings in town, and their fortunes are put down at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Peas in the Orchard.

Many a fruit grower dislikes to leave his trees in grass turf and to cultivate is frequently beyond the time and labor at command. As a remedy for keeping down weeds and sowing to keep the surface mellow we have used peas sown broadcast, and just after they have formed seed going over the orchard and plowing them under for a second crop, to be again turned under late in autumn. It is not that the pea enriches the ground, only as it is again and again turned under. Nor is it that it keeps down weeds better than buckwheat and Indian corn, but that it roots penetrate deeply and erate while shading the ground for which we give it preference. Our readers will understand us as having no faith in cropping and removing the crop from land occupied by a young orchard. We think one good growth better than two poor ones. An old apple or pear orchard of fifty or more years may possibly bear a cropping, but a young one never, economically in the end.

Note—Barometer corrected for temperature and elevation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 1:30 A. M., June 6, 1871.

SYNOPSIS FOR THE PAST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

The barometer has risen somewhat on Pacific coast, and remained nearly stationary at the Rocky Mountain stations. It has fallen decidedly during the evening north and west of the Ohio Valley; it is stationary or rising on Gulf and Atlantic coast. The temperature has fallen west of Indiana and in Eastern States, and is stationary or rising in Southern and Gulf States. The winds have been generally light; and local fresh northeasterly winds prevailed for a time on Lakes Erie and Ontario and Middle Atlantic coast. Partially cloudy and clear weather has been generally reported during the day, with clearing up weather in South Carolina. A storm of considerable severity has probably been experienced in Iowa.

PROBABILITIES.

Light and fresh winds are probable on Gulf and Atlantic coast for Tuesday.

MINOR MENTION.

The City Hospital contains thirty-one patients.

The Gardeners of this city picnic to-morrow in Stile's Grove.

St. John's Church (Catholic) go on a picnic to Zionsville on the 15th.

The County Commissioners granted twenty-two liquor licenses yesterday afternoon.

The Phipps Bros., jewelers of this city, yesterday petitioned to be adjudged bankrupts.

The First Presbyterian Church has extended a call to Rev. J. P. F. Kunkler, of Evansville, at a salary of $3,500.

The Indianapolis Piano Company have leased the rooms formerly occupied by the Howe Sewing Machine in the Elina Building.

The new Roman Catholic Cathedral on Tennessee street is to be dedicated on the second day of next month, with grand and imposing ceremonies.

Marshal Bigelow left for Jeffersonville this morning, in charge of Lewis Holder and Albert H. Denny, who were sent to two years imprisonment each by the United States Court for counterfeiting.

Disastrous Runaway.

Just before six o'clock last evening as Messrs. Salsbury and young Vinton, proprietors of the paper mill, were riding past Military Park on New York street, some portion of their carriage became disarranged and frightened the horse into a fearful runaway.

Turning up West street, north, the vehicle struck a shade tree and was completely wrecked, freeing the horse. Both gentlemen were thrown to the ground, Mr. Vinton escaping without much injury. Mr. Salsbury was thrown upwards of twenty feet, striking upon his face and shoulder on the solid pavement. He was picked up almost insensible and conveyed to his residence. He was found to be terribly bruised about the forehead, the bones of his nose broken, the lips badly cut, and the left arm fractured near the shoulder joint. Although severely injured his physician thinks him not in a dangerous condition.

The Council Meeting.

Messrs. Locke and Marsee were the only members absent at the meeting of Council last evening. Mayor Macaulay presided.

Wirth & Co. were allowed $9,506 14, on sewer contract. An allowance of $1,335 14 was made in payment for planting and box-indebt.

Under a suspension of the rules the following ordinances were passed:

Appropriating $105,000 for the redemption of bonds, and paying the interest thereon.

To regulate the opening of streets, sidewalks and alleys in the city of Indianapolis for gas, water or other purposes. The ordinance provides that no street, sidewalk or alley shall be disturbed for the purpose named without a permit having first been obtained from the Street Commissioner.

Appropriating $14,633 73 in payment of survey claims, to include $13,947 48 partial estimates for construction of the South street sewer.

Making the general appropriation, $422,175, for the fiscal year ending May 15, 1872.

Making a general tax levy of 81 33/100 on the $100, as based upon the tax levy for the year 1871.

Mr. Batty introduced an ordinance to prohibit the erection of lamp posts during the current fiscal year.

The following ordinances were ordered stricken from the file:

To repeal an ordinance providing for the paving of the north sidewalk of Georgia, between Meridian and Pennsylvania street.

To build Tennessee street from North street to Indiana avenue.

To light Illinois street between Garden and McCarly streets.

Prohibiting the use of velocipedes on the public streets and sidewalks.

Regulating the manner of improving public streets and alleys.

The commissioner was instructed to suspend the work of inclosing the City Park for a hog pound, after which the Council adjourned.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Craft & Cutter would like to show gentlemen some very elegant vest and fob gold chains of a new pattern, on which they propose to name very satisfactory prices. Gentlemen of taste will please step in at 24 East Washington street.

Go to Medina's Temple of Fashion for beautiful styles and pure material in hair goods. The world never before saw such elegance as is displayed at 34 West Washington street.

The present King of Spain, although not well suited with the throne of Spain, might please himself with the endless variety of jewelry shown at Colclazer's jewelry store, 14 East Washington street. Go there.

INSURANCE MATTERS.

The Brooklyn Paid Fire Department costs $576,480 a year.

The Guardian Mutual Life has adopted the all cash plan.

First-class stocks are written in San Francisco as low as forty cents.

The Garden City Fire of Chicago, has re-insured its risks in the Commercial.

The Republic Life of Chicago, is about "swallowing" the International Life of that city.

The Occidental of San Francisco has assumed the risks of the New York Commonwealth.

It is said that the insurance companies in France pay no losses on the building where the fire originates.

One of our foremost mutual companies is considering the question of entering New York State.—[St. Louis Review.]

New Hampshire seems to be a paradise for fire underwriters; last year fifteen per cent. of receipts covered losses in that State.

The Board of Trade of Chicago are organizing a company with a capital of $300,000, for the purpose of insuring grain exclusively.

Samuel H. Row, Esq., has been appointed insurance commissioner under the provisions of the law passed at the last session, in Michigan.

It is understood that the California Marine Union, a combination of companies for transacting marine business throughout the world, has been in a financial snarl, a failure.

Marine Companies in New York seem to have been remarkably successful last year. The premium amounting to $18,871,617, while losses and expenditures were only $7,203,333; gross assets, $25,000,000.

Rates on steam flouring mills which have been painfully weak a few months ago, have advanced, and are now palpatibly strong. Losses on special hazards stiffen rates quickly, but the lesson on first class risks seems lost.—[St. Louis Review.]

Among the features in the conduct of fire insurance business by several Eastern companies, is the manifest desire to accommodate themselves to Western notions by employing men from the West in their home offices in leading positions.

We are indebted to W. W. Caldwell, Esq., State Agent of the Hope Life Insurance Company, for the daily published proceedings of the National Insurance Convention, held in New York. As it does not seem to have accomplished much however, we make no extracts.

It is singular that while the various statistics show such a great preponderance of frame buildings in Chicago, and such a preponderance of brick in St. Louis, that Eastern companies afraid of this locality, will continue to lose money in the Lake city year after year.—[St. Louis Review.]

The Equity and Law Life of London, has adopted the plan of fixing a definite surrender value to its policies. On whole life and endowment policies, after three years premiums have been paid, thirty-three per cent. of the premiums paid on non-participating policies and forty per cent. on participating policies.

It is currently rumored in Toronto, Canada, that a new fire insurance company, to be called the "Isolated Risk Fire Insurance Company," is being organized there with a nominal capital of $500,000. As the charter empowers it to do any kind of fire insurance, it is yet too early to predict whether its business will be confined to isolated risks solely, or not.

It is remarkable that men contemplating perpetrating frauds prefer companies from other States, and those with the "largest array of assets." Local or small companies usually exercise more care and discrimination in fixing valuation, selecting risks and ascertaining the character and circumstances of applicants; while companies at a distance frequently make "the rate" the only important feature in the risk, affording abundant facilities to those desiring overinsurance for the purpose of selling out to insurance companies.

The Life Insurance Company of Gotha, in Germany, have adopted a new table of surrender values taking effect January, 1871. When the reserve on a policy equals 10 per cent. of the sum insured, the surrender value will be 50 per cent. of the reserve; 10 to 12 per cent. of the sum insured, 51 per cent. of the reserve; 12 to 14 per cent. of the sum insured, 52 per cent. of the reserve; 15 to 52 per cent. of the sum insured, 71 per cent. of the reserve. When more than 52 per cent. of the sum insured, 72 per cent. of the reserve; 80 per cent. of the sum insured, 100 per cent. of the reserve.

The American Tontine Life which recently reinsured its risks in the Empire, was financially in a strong position. On the 1st of January last, the company had $2,470,058 at risk, which required a reinsurance reserve of $92,477; the other liabilities of the company were $19,977; total liabilities, $112,454. The total assets were $272,661, of which $167,943 were in cash and government bonds. We doubt not the parties in interest have acted wisely in retiring from an over crowded field. We are glad to learn that other companies will soon follow the example of the Tontine.

There was a slight difference of opinion between the judge and jury in the Tontine life insurance case. Action was brought by the heirs of the deceased to recover the amount of a policy which the company refused to pay, because the holder had committed suicide. The judge held, in his charge, that it was not true that suicide was presumptive evidence of insanity; that insanity must be proved, otherwise death would be considered the deliberate act of the suicide, and such an one as to relieve the company from responsibility. This construction of the law is more liberal toward the companies than in any previous case; and the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The recent failure of several insurance companies has brought the question of the personal liability of stockholders and directors prominently before the public. Very few persons take the trouble to investigate the standing of companies, relying mainly on the character of the directors and officers. It is a moral, if not a legal fraud on the public for men of wealth and standing to allow the use of their names as directors, when they leave the management entirely to one or two of the officers. We hope some of the sufferers by the recent failures will test the question as to liability. In Missouri the constitution definitely fixed the personal liability of stockholders "to double the amount of their stock, which, by an amendment last fall, has been reduced one-half. In view of the peculiar condition of some companies, the question has more than a transient or local interest.—[St. Louis Review.]

Cooking Food for Stock.

I wish to inquire through the columns of your valuable paper, which is the best method of cooking corn for hogs—in the ear, or shelled and ground? Any information will be thankfully received. A SUBSCRIBER.

If the corn is to be directly boiled in water, we have had better satisfaction from boiling on the ear. It should be done in a bushel, was one of the best crops for profit, when a man's soil was a good, rich, (rather heavy) sandy loam; but be that as it
